

The Department of Music wishes to invite all to join in our weekly screenings of selected classic films, which will showcase music designed to add gripping features to the art of visual storytelling. We would like to promote the idea that sounds are integral to the audience's cinema experience. By showing films of different genres each week, we hope you take a tour with us to explore more about the classics.

This week, we are delighted to present one of the greatest film noir movies in history: Touch of Evil. Join us to uncover the undercurrents flowing in a dreary and corrupt Mexican border town! No registration, just walk in, sit down, and enjoy!
